The details of this programme were accurate at the time of going to press

The church of St Michael's was opened in 1856 to promote and revive Anglican Church Music under the guidance of Sir Frederick Ouseley. This it did for 129 years until the college's closure in 1985 when it continued to be the parish church for the small parish of St Michael's. It is now part of the Tenbury Team Ministry which has some 13 churches in the counties of Herefordshire, Worcestershire and Shropshire, all within the Diocese of Hereford.

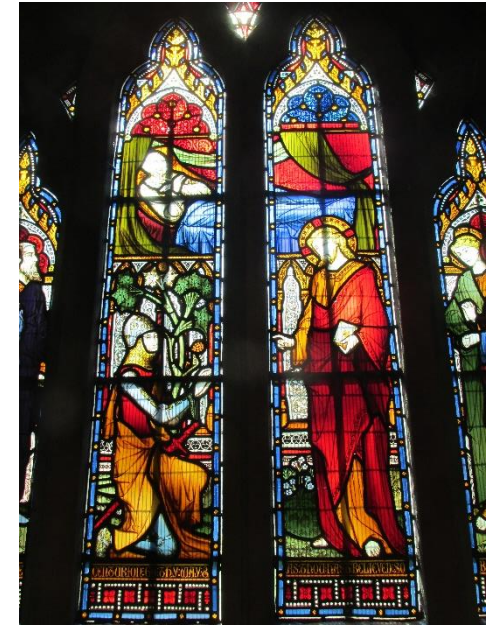

Today the college buildings form the campus of a highly successful International School whose students are drawn from all continents and the church is used by them for key occasions.

The Ouseley Trust was set up following the college closure as a charity to support music making in cathedrals, major parish churches and colleges in the United Kingdom. It continues to support the church and in turn the PCC promotes music making of the kind Ouseley intended as well as other community events, making the church a lively place. You will find this range of music making in this year's programme.

The PCC gratefully thank the following for support in the maintenance of this historic building and organ:

The CCC English Heritage The Garfield Weston and Wolfson Foundations The Historic Churches Conservation Trust The William and Jane Morris Fund and The Allchurches, Lesley David, Alan Evans Memorial. Idlewild, Manifold, John Pilling and Ouseley Trusts The St Michaels' College Society
